Biography

Thom Mayne was born in Waterbury, Connecticut. He was educated at University of Southern California and the Harvard University Graduate School of Design. Nowadays he is a widely known architect and has many awards including the 2005 Pritzker Prize. The American is the principal of Morphosis, famous architectural office.

“Thom Mayne is a product of the turbulent 60s, who has carried that rebellious attitude and fervent desire for change into his practice, the fruits of which are only now becoming visible in a group of large scale projects.”
